FEEL SO TIRED ALL THE TIME

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Cardui, of 204 North Seventeenth Street, this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Cardui. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, please him, I did and I say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping."

"I have five children, four in school and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine."

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs. I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time. It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

"If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you."

Cardui is a purely vegetable, tonic medicine for women's ailments, found valuable in thousands of such cases as described above.

Take Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

EVANGELINE BOOTH ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Man's Inhumanity Responsible Primarily for Situation

Discussing direct with the people of Virginia the open question of unemployment and the problems of the poor, Evangeline Booth, leader of the Salvation Army in the United States, has issued this statement from the Salvation Army national headquarters in New York city:

"For unemployment, for hard times, man alone is to blame. The trouble with the world is traceable to nothing more or less than man's inhumanity to man. The rain grows just the same, the rain falls, the needed snows come, the mines give up their ore and the cattle bring forth their young just as of old. Never had God or nature ceased to bestow the blessings that come from the earth."

"But in sight of all these blessings men have elected to differ, differ unreasonably. Angry debate starts, and the world is in a ferment. Trade hawks, production stops. Entire nations go into a deadlock on the trade basis. Manufacturers, merchant and public view each other with suspicion and the evil circle is complete. Millions become idle, men grow hungry—the whole world suffers."

"It is in this condition we find ourselves today; analyze the cause honestly and you can come to only one conclusion. Negative mental processes, purely man-made antagonisms, lie at the root of the evil."

"Honest differences of opinion can be followed by meetings within the end of all the other committees. The enthusiasm of the members is increasing as is characteristic among young men with a reputation for doing things."

The campaign organization, as announced by Executive Secretary E. C. Murray is as follows: Campaign Council, W. E. Meade, chairman, C. T. Eldridge, G. P. Geoghegan, Jr., W. T. Gravelly, J. T. Campaign Will be Held from Feb. 9 to 15—Activities of Various Committees

The coming membership campaign of the Young Men's Business Club, February 9th to 15th, for one thousand members has been in contemplation for a long time. There has been a firm conviction among the more active members of the organization that the enlargement of the club would lead to service and prove of greater practical benefit to the young men of the town. As the roster is swelled in members the influence of the club will surely increase its opportunities for service.

It is proposed in the enlarged organization to afford young men an opportunity for mutual improvement along practical business lines and consequent increased business value as well as to become acquainted with and participate in the solution of the various social problems. The committee are working earnestly planning for the work of the club along lines calculated to interest a much larger number of individuals than any time heretofore. ## DEFEATS SALEM AT BASKETBALL

The Danville high school quintet had little difficulty in disposing of Salem High basketball team Saturday night on the Municipal Hall floor, the final score being 24 to 8. However, most of Salem's scoring occurred after the local second team took the floor. At the end of the first half the score was 24 to 4. With about ten minutes to play the second team sent in against the visitors. The score at this point being 24 to 8. With less than five minutes to play Coach Spruhan's charges began to pick and take notice that a basketball game was in progress, scoring twelve points before the game ended.

Enright scored the most points for Danville, scoring six baskets. Danville line-up follows:

RELIGIOUS COUNT FOR DANVILLE

Next Sunday afternoon, February 5, an interdenominational census will be taken by committees from the several white churches of the city under the auspices of the Federated Men's Bible classes of the city. Those in charge of this movement have been very active at work for the past few weeks arranging for this work. Committees have been formed from the two hundred and fifty persons who have volunteered their services from the several churches and organizations in Danville. The city has been subdivided into small districts which will enable the canvassers to complete the census during the afternoon of next Sabbath. A complete record of each white person, young and old, will be taken, showing church and Sabbath school affiliation, if any, or the church and school preference if not affiliated with any. These lists will be taken by a committee of which W. B. Jordan is chairman, and classified, giving to each church and school the names and address of those who are members of the respective churches and schools as well as those who express a preference for any particular church organization.

It is hoped by this perfected organization to reach every white man, woman and child in the city and get them interested in some school and church of Danville. This is quite an undertaking but with the plan in hand it can and will be accomplished without any one person being overburdened with work.

Mrs. K. F. Alexander has returned to her home here after an extended trip North.

Miss Mary Burton is spending the week-end in Lynchburg as the guest of Miss Aubrey Chesterman.

Awful Scene in Crash Described

Florida Congressman Very Graphically Describes What Happened When Roof of Knickerbocker Cracked.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—An avalanche of broken plaster, bricks, snow, splintered wood and twisted steel beams catapulting upon the audience while the orchestra played and a comedy film ground out is the description of the Knickerbocker theater disaster given today by Representative John H. Smithwick, of Pennsylvania, Fla. He was in the balcony of the theater when the roof collapsed under its weight of snow and escaped unaided—just how he cannot recall—with more or less serious hurts.

The orchestra was playing beautiful music and a comic film was running," said Mr. Smithwick, lying in his bed, bandaged and with his face and hands covered with cuts. "Suddenly there was a sharp crack. I looked up and saw a great fissure running across the ceiling. It was right over my head. I instantly realized what was happening. The plaster began to fall, dropping down in large and small chunks all over the theater. It seemed to me.

"While I was looking up a great piece right over my head started to fall. I ducked, crouching, involuntarily I suppose, down between the seats. The piece struck the seat right where I had been sitting. The force was broken by the seat, but it pinned me down where I was crouching. The noise was awful. It was a great, tremendous roar. It was simply indescribable. I never can forget it.

"In the midst of the roaring were shrieks and cries of women and children and a few shouts of men. There were cries for help, groans and worst of all the moans of those in terrible pain. It was awful. I can't describe it. I see it all the time, those poor children and men and women crying and groaning there.

"There were only a few of us in the balcony. Luckily there were not more. The balcony gave way and crashed, soon after the ceiling began to fall, on those on the lower floor. They were caught the worse. We in the balcony were more fortunate. I guess there was a lapse of maybe 20 seconds, hardly more, before the balcony fell. Funny, but it spun around, kind of twisted, as its supports gave way and it swung down on those below. It didn't go straight down, just kind of wild sideways and spinning, I suppose, from the weight of the debris that had fallen on us upstairs.

"I don't know how I got out from where I was crouching under that chunk of plaster that had fallen on me. I really believe it weighed all of 500 pounds. And I think I moved that plaster with my shoulders. Any way, I crawled out between the seats to where I saw a small hole in the plaster above. I forced myself up through that hole, giggling out over the snow and plaster, over the tangled debris, to the doors on the Eighteenth street side.

"Across the aisle from me when the crash came was a little fellow, I never saw him again and I wonder if he is dead—who laughed and roared at every especially funny part of the film. I don't know what became of him or the others in the balcony after we were showered with plaster.

"As the ceiling broke this plaster fell first, in clouds just like an ice pond breaking up. The roof didn't give way on one crash. It seemed to break up everywhere. That let in the snow, which came in through the broken places where the ceiling had given way.

"It is queer, but I was conscious all the time with me pinned down under there by that great piece of ceiling, my mind when I saw the ceiling falling, and afterward was just as clear and collected as it is now. I knew I was hurt some, but I didn't know how badly. It seemed that my time had come. I lived a year, I tell you, planned down between the seats. I wasn't until I got outside that I noticed blood falling from my face and hands. I got out myself. No one helped me. I crawled over the broken seats and plaster and snow to the door. On the way I saw a young fellow lying half curled up moaning and crying for help. I leaned over to him and then everything went black. The next I remember I was at the door, wiping the blood from my eyes and mouth.

"I don't know how I got out. I didn't see any other injured ones as I crawled out. I can't remember about that part of it. My only thought then was to get home before I should die. My chest was pained, my back seemed broken, my face was dripping with blood. All I wanted to do was to get home and tell my wife and little girl what had happened and how I was hurt. I thought I was going to die."

Representative Smithwick, who lives about a block from the theater, said he staggered home without a coat or hat through the snow drifts. Physicians were summoned immediately, who found him suffering from shock, bruises and possibly internal injuries.

"I think it was a miracle that I came out alive," said the Florida congressman. "But think of those poor children and men and women who were not so fortunate. I don't see how any who were under that balcony escaped. If those who could have seen the ceiling breaking could have had time to rush out through the door, but I guess they couldn't see like we in the balcony. They underneath us had no chance, I guess."

More Bodies Are Believed Pinned Under Heavy Roof

went on unchecked after dark, but those in charge believed few additional bodies would be found. Without regard to their own risk, soldiers, marines, sailors, police, firemen and citizen volunteers had fought their way beneath the wreckage over practically the whole floor space of the auditorium.

The exact number in the theater when the steel and concrete span of the roof buckled and fell under its three-foot load of snow probably will never be known. The stories of perhaps a hundred who got out unscathed have been reported. These accounts for a few more than 300 in the audience that was roaring in laughter at a comedy when the roof fell on them. Like a blanket, carrying down the front of the wide balcony, it is their crash.

Normally, the theater has had every seat filled at that hour and nearly 2,000 persons was its capacity. The same unprecedented downfall which brought death to the venture capitalist kept the many at home.

Street car traffic had been abandoned and streets and sidewalks were all but impossible with drifts.

There has been no time as yet for official inquiry as to the cause of the disaster. The ruins themselves disclose, however, that the air mass of dead-wood concrete that formed the roof had come down. The crash swung the supports out from under the balcony, apparently, and this swung down at an angle of 45 degrees, adding to the tangled mass of wreckage on the floor below.

The building stands in an awkward corner at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, northwest. The heart of the city, the favored residence section of the city. The narrowest part of the stage on which the screen hangs backed into the corner angle while to the left from the stage the line of the auditorium wall runs in a straight line for some 200 feet down Eighteenth street. To the right the wall follows the stage, turning at Columbia road for about the same distance and at the far end paralleling the stage front, the back wall completes the auditorium proper, also about 200 feet in length.

This whole space stood roofless to the sky a moment after the first falling sound of the breaking roof came, leaving above the masses of the orchestra. There is only one narrow way far who has told of having heard that warning and seen the first powdery handful of snow left down over the head of the orchestra leader in time to make his escape. From his seat well forward on the main floor, he raced for the doors at the back. A great blast of air expelled as the roof came down, hurled him out through the doorway to safety.

The Pit a Death Trap.

Most of the bodies were recovered from the floor of the pit beneath the wreckage of the balcony or from the front of the balcony itself. Following the rule of motion picture audiences and with an almost certain hope to pick from those on the main floor had grouped themselves on the rows of seats just below the front of the balcony. They were back far enough to see well and the front and back rows were almost empty.

At the point they had chosen, the danger proved to be just double. Few of those seated there could have escaped. Even if the falling concrete slabs and steel work of the roof missed them, the solid mass of the balcony front came down on the first wreckage with crushing weight. The glowing brass rail that adorned the balcony front lay spread over the wreckage of the roof 15 feet below when rescuers reached the scene.

Those farther back on the main floor probably all escaped. The beams that supported the back end of the balcony did not let go their clutch on the wall. The wide sweep of seats they supported tilted down under the wreckage below, took the weight of the front end and then stood covering the back rows of the main floor like a tent.

Firemen plunged into the wreckage with lanterns. Men with electric torches came from all sides to aid. And it was a daunting task they faced. They stood on the debris they must lift to reach those dead or dying below. On the Columbia road side the single air towered menacingly above their heads, stripped almost bare except for the high exit signs that were flung out of the balcony, now crumpled mass below. Not a window in the long wall as broken. With infinite care the rescuers began work. Every beam they touched might lead another mass of concrete down it was moved too swiftly. There were some groans in the darkness being where they knew how many men, women and children had been crushed or trapped there. The huge slab of the concrete from the roof, torn from their steel supporting girders, stood in crazy attitudes. A touch might send them toppling.

But against every difficulty, the soldiers and sailors and firemen and police and citizens toiled desperately, and a slow stream of dead and dying began to trickle out through the doorway. Nearly every house and store in the vicinity became a rescue station. Housewives made up pots of coffee for rescuers and rescued as the night wore on.

On the Eighteenth street front a row of parked automobiles stood, waited for owners killed or hurt in the crash inside. They were huddled in snow and only a narrow lane was opened to traffic in the street itself as the street cars could not get through because of the snow. The automobiles hindered the rescuers' work as they were picked up bodily by crowds of men and lifted out of the way.

Ambulances and private machines gathered up the injured as they were brought out. Finally a string of army ambulances arrived from Walter Reed hospital with sacks full of bandages. Doctors came from every army and navy and civilian doctors.

All through the night the work of rescue went on. It was evident that nothing could be done for many of the victims until the weight of the wreckage could be lifted. A call to the navy yard brought blue jackets and hydraulic jacks and oxy-hydrogen jets to burn through the steel beams. The jacks were lined up under the edge of the fallen balcony and lifted at a time its weight was lifted. Rescuers took their lives in their hands to creep under and release people there.

As daylight came the task became

If you have no appetite, do not sleep well, are weak, run down, listless, no energy, and no ambition, it is evident that your daily food is not nourishing you.

It will interest every such person to know that his medical profession have for some time been recommending dietetic treatment for such conditions, rather than medicine, and at last science has produced SUSTO Nutritive Tonic Tablets which contains in a concentrated form the life-giving and strengthening elements of yeast, rice, eggs, milk, with beef, portoin, nucleon and iron that are lacking in our daily diet, to overcome such conditions.

SUSTO has been tested and approved by a well-known Professor of Physiological Chemistry at one of our leading Medical Colleges, and after months of experimenting with SUSTO, he says, "In all cases of a general run-down system or in convalescence SUSTO played a very important part in stimulating the appetite and increasing body weight. In every instance where under-nourished infants and children were given SUSTO, important body-weight increases were registered."

Therefore, we feel very confident that our customers can find nothing better than SUSTO for the elements of which it is recommended.

DAVIS SLATE IS BEING OPPOSED

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 28.—The Senate committee on nominations, which is considering the nominations made by Governor Davis, held a meeting this afternoon and agreed to meet again Monday. It developed that the labor unions have taken a hand in the fight and are striving to prevent the confirmation of the penitentiary board which installed and is training the convicts in the art of printing. The plan is a big affair and men who have been sent to prison for stealing, murder and all sorts of crimes are trained to compete with free labor. There are nearly seventy nominations awaiting action, and if they are not confirmed by Tuesday all of them will have to be renominated by the incoming governor. The belief is that the list will have a hard time getting by, for there is so much objection that the committee will not, it is believed, be able to make a report in time for action.

FOUL

A REAL EDITOR.

(Boston Globe.)

One of those voluble but silent callers in which journalism abounds has come to its close in Connecticut. The editor and proprietor of the Hartford Times, Willie O. Burr, has died at the age of 81, after a lifetime of labor on the paper founded by his father.

His own services began in the year of the civil war, 1863, and continued to within a few months of his death. The Times, under both father and son, remained a citadel of conservatism amid the ebb and flow of party passions which have swept about us during the civil war that it opposed President Lincoln and upheld the doctrine of States' rights, and its editor and owner faced blows, financial loss and the threat of imprisonment.

Having served his apprenticeship in such stormy times, the younger Mr. Burr continued the policy of outspoken editorialism, while himself remaining studiously in the background. His signature and picture were rarely seen in print. His personality was, however, stamped on the paper which he published.

A STATEMENT TO THE
PUBLIC BY MEMBERS OF THE CITY COUNCIL.

The undersigned members of the City Council of Danville desire to state to the public that they have no intention of increasing taxes on the people of Danville; that in their opinion there is no need of such increase and that the amendment to the city charter which has been forwarded to Hon. Jos. B. Anderson, is not sought for the purpose of increasing taxes. On the contrary, the Council is doing everything it reasonably can do to effect a reduction in taxation and in its opinion the adoption of the proposed amendment will open a way by which the total tax bill against citizens of Danville can be more quickly brought about.

The proposed amendment was carefully considered in a meeting of the Finance Committee, at which were present S. J. Owens, chairman; Jas. D. Harrison and Col. A. B. Carrington, also by invitation, L. B. Conway, chairman of the Public Welfare Committee, and W. B. Gardner, chairman of the Public Works Committee. By unanimous vote the City Attorney was requested to prepare the amendment and to present it to the City Council at its next meeting.

An effort is being made in the General Assembly to effect a segregation of subjects of taxation by which the State will take to itself certain items of taxation and leave to the municipalities (or localities) certain other items. Should the State reserve to itself the tax on intangibles and money and relinquish to the city the tax on real estate and tangible property, it is under the necessity of increasing the real estate and tangible rate to balance the amount lost by intangibles and money. This could and would be done without increasing the total tax paid by the citizens of Danville.

When the question of the re-assessment of real estate was under discussion, some members of the Council, of those who desired a decrease in assessment, stated to the Council that they preferred a lower valuation of real estate with a relatively higher tax rate rather than a higher valuation with the present tax rate. Had the Council at that time passed the right of now working in this change of character, the Council could have acquiesced in the lower valuation then desired and by so doing the taxpayers of Danville would have saved considerable amounts of money which are now being paid to the State Treasury. It is the opinion of the undersigned members of the Council that the change of character of the tax system is a desirable one and that the Council should acquiesce in the lower valuation then desired and by so doing the taxpayers of Danville would have saved considerable amounts of money which are now being paid to the State Treasury.

SHANTUNG TIE-UP
IS HOLDING BACK
ARMS CONFERENCE

Japan Wants Officials With real Authority to Be Retained.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Shantung tie-up and the near blizzard that paralyzed traffic and communication in Washington combined to again block the progress of the arms conference today, but the delay did not dim prevailing confidence that all the conference issues soon would be carried forward to solution.

So far as Shantung was concerned, it was wholly a day of waiting for the mediatory effort of President Harding to have its effect at Peking and Tokio. All indications pointed to a decision early next week, and all the delegates appeared confident that the decision would be for a settlement along the lines of the compromise supported by the president.

Both of the meetings planned for today by sub-divisions of the conference were cancelled because of the storm. The delegates decided it was impractical to attempt to plow their way through the snow to their committee rooms. One of these meetings was to have brought the Japanese and Chinese delegates together to begin drafting a Shantung treaty, and the other was a proposed session of the subcommittee considering the Chinese eastern railway.

The postponed Japan-Chinese meeting, it was explained, had nothing to do with the Tientsin-Shantung railroad issue over which the Shantung negotiations are deadlocked, but merely was to have put into treaty language the agreements already reached on collateral subjects. It was said this work could be delayed until Monday without delaying the final wind-up of the negotiations, since experts of both groups were busy on their own account getting the treaty in shape.

In the Chinese eastern railway discussions, which are a part of the Far Eastern committee negotiations, differences of view have developed which in any case seem likely to delay a decision for several days, while the various powers fully determine their respective attitudes. The Chinese have objected to the plan of international financing for the road, worked out by a group of experts, and also to the proposal for pooling the line with Japanese funds.

It was said tonight that the Chinese Eastern railway might become one of the lesser issues of the conference, because of the situation of the road, partly in Siberian and partly in Chinese territory. The present system of administration by an international board seems certain to be perpetuated, and the financing and pooling proposals far from settlement.

It became increasingly apparent today that the big question in the Shantung controversy was what degree of control is to be retained by Japan over the Tientsin-Shantung railroad during the period while China is paying for it. With that out of the way, it is conceded, settlement of all the other details will be easy. The Japanese seem disposed to insist that a Japanese official with real authority be retained in both operating and auditing departments, but the Chinese delegates are uncertain whether their government will consent to such a proposal.

While the other important projects of the conference are waiting for a Shantung settlement, the delegates are busy with the possibilities of the question that must be decided afterward, and are preparing the ground work for a discussion of the "twenty-one demands" and other postponed questions. No one seems to think any of these will be a serious barrier to a settlement, and the part of the conference personnel is making its plans for a final adjustment soon after the end of February.

Constituted the under problem to be disposed of after Shantung is out of the way, the question of holding out for an extension of the treaties based on the "21 demands" is receiving in passing attention among all the delegations. The Japanese are preparing a statement on the subject which they have estimated may help to bring Chinese attention to the treaty and the Chinese and American governments also are expected to take a leading part in the discussion.

In some conference circles there is a feeling that Shantung is returning to the status of the objective of the conference, and that the "21 demands" are being removed from the list of issues to be taken up by the conference.

It is the opinion of the undersigned members of the Council that the change of character of the tax system is a desirable one and that the Council should acquiesce in the lower valuation then desired and by so doing the taxpayers of Danville would have saved considerable amounts of money which are now being paid to the State Treasury. Atlantic States
Are Snowbound

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—More than twenty-four hours of continuous snow had tonight covered the middle Atlantic section with Washington as the center, a depth of a foot to nearly three inches caused the suspension of practically all business and social activity; disrupted transportation, and shut most of the population in their homes.

The storm, which weather bureau officials after looking up their records said was one of the most severe in history and exceeded in the depth of snowfall only by the remembered blizzard of February, 1898, was moving slowly inland on the coast from its position during the day off Virginia.

Reports to the weather bureau showed that the Potomac, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia were bearing the brunt of the storm and receiving the heaviest snowfall. Virginia cities, accustomed to only an inch or so of snow and then of rare occurrence, were buried in heavy snow to the depth of a foot while northern portions of the Carolina still were blanketed with a fall that began Thursday.

Washington, however, appeared to be the center of the heavy fall, the weather bureau measurements taken late in the day showing the depth to be closely approaching two and a half feet and the record fall of three feet established in '99. All records for twenty-four hours fall had been broken at 6 o'clock, the hour at which the storm struck Washington yesterday.

The national capital with its heavy and constantly increasing blanket was virtually paralyzed as to activities of all kinds in which the same manner as in 1899, when a light fall but accompanied by rain and sleet forced abandonment of elaborate plans for the inauguration of President Taft.

The capital awakes slowly in the morning and despite the most energetic efforts to cope at all during the day with the rapidly descending fall, street cars on the principal lines managed for a while early in the day to struggle through the constant increasing accumulation but as the day wore on made an almost complete surrender.

Automobiles and other motor vehicles likewise were unable to cope with the snow and tonight the streets of downtown Washington were lined with abandoned cars, some of which the owners had not been able to move since last night. Taxi-cabs last night and early today did a thriving business, but as the snow increased their numbers were diminished by the drifts.

The snowfall in Washington practically halted governmental activities and had its effect in an international way by causing the cancellation of two scheduled armament conference meetings.

Thousands of government employees walked to work snowed out, and in any section in the city of the storm would the snowfall be nearly as heavy as in the middle Atlantic States.

Indications late in the day were that the snow would cease in Washington and vicinity during the night, weather bureau officials said, and be succeeded tomorrow by partly cloudy weather with temperatures below freezing.

The remarkable phase of the storm through the middle Atlantic area was that there was little interruption to wire communication, the lightness of the snow and the absence of melting operated to prevent it sticking to wires and thereby disrupting service. Officials of the Seaboard Air Line announced their schedules were greatly affected.

SHIPS IN DISTRESS
FROM HEAVY GALE

NORFOLK, Jan. 28.—Heavy seas whipped by a gale of high velocity, accompanied by snow, jeopardized shipping all along the Virginia and North Carolina coast throughout today, and tonight the storm continued unabated. Prospects for relief were reported to prevent it sticking to wires and thereby disrupting service. Officials of the Seaboard Air Line announced their schedules were greatly affected.

Cape Henry weather bureau recorded the wind velocity there at 54 miles an hour. Only a few ships ventured out from this port. Reports of distress of varying degree came from all directions by wireless, though no vessel was reported in a precarious position.

Lovick Schoolfield Is Theatre Victim

Mr. Schoolfield said that his brother had met with a fatal accident and that the remains would be brought back to Danville as soon as possible.

For several hours Jacob Schoolfield, who lived near Danville, was anxious to see the man referred to in press dispatches as his brother, Norman Schoolfield, of Culpeper.

Mrs. Swanson yesterday evening received a telegram from Washington telling her that Mrs. Eldridge had been killed with her husband in the Knickerbocker. Mr. and Mrs. Swanson who are cousins of Mrs. Eldridge, are leaving for Washington this afternoon. Before leaving she said that the young woman received her education in Danville at the M. J. but never lived here with her people. "She was a gifted and bright and attractive young woman, about 25 years of age," Mrs. Swanson said.

The married Alfred Eldridge, organist of St. Margaret's Episcopal church in Washington, and both were very prominent in the work of that church. He said that they have one child, Elsie Eldridge, aged 8, who is thus rendered an orphan by the terrible calamity.

Word was received this morning that the remains of Lovick Schoolfield would be brought to Danville on train No. 33 tomorrow evening. Funeral arrangements will be made later. Mr. Schoolfield, who was born in this city in September, 1890, had lived virtually all of his life here until two years ago.

John P. Davis, formerly of this city, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Davis, for the past two days, leaves this afternoon for Dothan, Ala., where he has been transferred by the Woolworth company of Norfolk, at which place he manages one of the company's stores.

W. P. King, of Roanoke, has returned home after a short visit to his sister, Mrs. J. Wayth Fulton.

Depot Fireswept Early Sunday With Loss Fully $60,000

From the north for twenty-four hours. Everything was in a hurry. In the depot yesterday was to be seen a number of Ku Klux Klan robes. The vaudeville company of George B. Gardner, playing here last week, lost everything they had. The personal clothing and stage paraphernalia was in trunks at the station and everything was burned, thus representing no small loss to the individuals.

Several weeks of mail were destroyed. At the postoffice it said was last night that none of this was incoming mail to Danville, but for the most part was mail waiting to be sent to Norfolk.

Supintendent A. D. Shelton was asleep in his private car almost in front of the station when the fire broke out. He was on his way to Washington to assist in restoring order out of chaotic conditions. An engine quickly pulled his car and he was in danger from the heat out of harm's way.

Early yesterday morning the Southern ordered lumber and soon constructed a new ticket office.

Sydney DeButts, chief clerk for Superintendent Shelton, said this morning that so far as the company had from wiring in the attic. Ten days ago the insurance inspector was in Danville and went over the work and found it satisfactory. The loss, according to company officials, will be about $40,000, which does not include the amount which will have to be paid out in claims for burned baggage.

According to Mr. DeButts, engineers who have viewed the walls find that they are safe and it is the intention of the railway company to put the building back in the same condition as it was at the time of the fire, with possibly a few beneficial changes.

As to insurance, it is said that it is covered by $42,000 which found its way into the company which carries its own risk. According to railway officials, a freight train engineer first saw a spark of flame in the roof and pulled his whistle cord for a sustained blast, which he intended as an alarm. About the same time burning embers fell through to the first floor and then those in the building became aware of fire. About $90 in currency in the baggage room was destroyed by fire. Nearly all of the ticket office money was saved. Possibly $70 in currency was recovered from the debris. Some of this was silver money which had melted and run together. A freak of the fire revealed in the debris of the restaurant, where the heat was enough to melt the coffee urns, when the refrigerator was pulled out of the smoking debris, it was found to contain five pounds of ice and cold drinks—this under a covering of heated debris.

Just who gave the alarm is not quite clear. A few minutes before five o'clock the telephone in the station street station rang. Fireman J. A. Malcom answered it. At that moment, he declares, the operator said "Number, please." The fireman told the operator, he says, that the bell rang and sought to establish the connection. The phone then went dead. A few moments later he heard a man's voice very faintly on the wire saying, "I'm trying to get someone to ring that fire alarm." Malcom at once aroused the men and told them that a call was coming. They were putting on their rubber boots when the gong rang and they made a quick turnout.

Miss Ella Waldron passed away yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the General Hospital at the age of 59 years, death being due to the infirmities of her advanced age. Miss Waldron was admitted to the hospital three weeks ago in a very feeble and weakened condition and her death may not be considered unexpected. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of Mrs. W. F. Keck, 733 Loyal street, her niece, with whom the deceased had made her home.

Trolley Service Is Re-established

out" of the snow storm yesterday. It thawed rapidly all day until sundown when it froze making sidewalks and streets today more treacherous than at any time since the big storm. The sidewalks have been, generally speaking, sufficiently cleared to enable pedestrians to walk safely. The city ordinance provides that after it snows each property holder shall clear the sidewalk opposite the property immediately in order that the snow shall not be packed down tight by passing feet.

Notwithstanding the snow the attendance at the Sunday schools and at the churches was excellent and a good many young men and women made a special effort to be on hand at service during the day.

Traffic on the streets was heavier than at any time since Thursday, although driving an automobile was no easy task and was rendered uncomfortable due to the hummocks of snow which developed at many points about the streets.

It is already realized that the recently laid snow piling on both sides of the street car tracks on Main street has been badly damaged. On the northbound track the damage seems to have been especially severe. Large cakes of asphaltic coating have come up and the entire surface is three or four inches higher than the street car track. This is believed to have been due to snow finding its way under the surface to the tracks and in this way forcing up the upper surface. This will be a heavy expense to the city.

The peril of more roofs caving in was believed today to be passing with the melting of the snow, gradually relieving the burden of the snow-laden roofs.

The last roof to cave in was on Sunday afternoon about two o'clock when a portion of the roof over the hall of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, located on N. Main street, fell in. Fortunately there was no one in the building at the time. The noise of the crash attracted members of the fire department across the street and they went to the hall on the third floor and found a portion of the roof covering an area of about 20 by 30 feet caved under by the weight of the snow. The part of the roof across the hall did not fall, this being supported by the partition between the two sections of the structure.

City Engineer R. K. Linville had a force of men working all through the night raking snow from Main street. Last night the high banks in the gutters were carried away in trucks and dumped into the river. He will continue this work every night and hopes to have the business section of town cleared by the middle of the week.

ROBE ORDERED TO AID LIL VETERANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—(By International News Service.)

This slogan, which stirred the country when the war had ended, has been readopted by the U. S. Veterans' bureau to spur its drive for the rehabilitation of fallen veterans of the world war. A drive, with this purpose in view, has been started in every federal and prison in the country.

Director Forbes has ordered teachers made in every hospital and school institution for veterans whose war experiences may have been a source of trouble for their present distress. Numerous soldiers to be helped, he came mentally disturbed through harrowing experiences in the war and fell from grace. These men, some serving prison sentences, but many committed to the penitentiary, are helped to find their way back to the hospital. The hospital search is extended to locate such veterans who sought to pay their expenses to the government. The government is also helping them as well as the government's aid.

Aim Set Forth By Women's Party

Nine Women Who Launch New Political Organization Plan to Fight Invisible Rule

CHICAGO, Jan. 28.—Born: A new political party run entirely by women. It is the "Rosevelt Progressive Party."

Nine women of Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, are the founders of this organization—the first authentic women's political party since universal suffrage became a matter of constitutional privilege. The incorporators are Dr. Marie Motis Zadek, Sadie Eunice Wilbur Brandt, Nettie Tuffer McGrath, Fannie Stein, Dorothy Zacharias, Emma R. Lewis, Luella Wilbur Forcraft, Margaret Nelson and Anna Myers McKendry.

The women intend to: 1—Purify government. 2—Nominate under the party title candidates for office not subject to "invisible governments" or to organized control of "bosses." 3—Keep the judiciary from political influence.

The women will get busy. It was said to make a new organization a strong factor in the political life of the city. Headquarters of the party organization will be at Chicago Branch offices will be established in other cities. Hundreds of women all over the country are pledged to the organization.

A board of nine directors will manage the affairs of the party from the central office. The nine incorporators will comprise the board for the present.

Mrs. McGrath said that the granting of the charter this week set the party in motion. She did not know what the immediate plans of the party are—whether the women would put a ticket in the field in Chicago or elsewhere.

"We are distinctly interested in women acting as an independent political unit," she explained.

The organizers are all identified prominently with the women's movement. Mrs. McGrath was secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the U. S. Party in 1912.

man of the Neighborhood Civic Club. Mrs. Brandt was active for years in the Equal Suffrage League. Mrs. Stein is a director of the Oak Park Civic Club. Mrs. Zacharias is a member of the Cook County Jewish Women's Council. Dr. Zadek is a leader in the Nonpartisan Club of Cicero. Mrs. Fifer is secretary of the Neighborhood Civic Club. Mrs. Nelson is a delegate from the "women farmers." Mrs. McKendry is president of the Presidents' Association of the Ladies of the Grand Army.

CROWD SUFFERS A DISAPPOINTMENT

The Human Fly Fails to Scale the Burton Hotel.

NOT HIS FAULT

Disappointment prevailed among the hundreds of people who gathered late yesterday afternoon on Main street in front of the Burton hotel, expecting to see George G. Polley, the "Human Fly," scale that building and do a number of acrobatic stunts on the edge of the roof. After making a few remarks to the crowd, Polley announced that he had been refused permission to climb the building, as the owners at the last minute decided to allow the young dare-devil to carry out his plans unless a "pull" was signed by lawyers releasing them from any possible responsibility should the performer fall. These developments came too late for arrangements to be made with owners of other buildings.

Polley announced from his stand that he would scale the building Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock and gave a guarantee that there would be no disappointments at that time for, he said, that he was going to climb the structure with or without permission as it was certain that no one would follow him and the only thing that would bring him down would be a shot from a gun. It was learned last night that Polley intends to make the climb promptly Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock and promises some sensational and death-defying stunts.

The "Human Fly" as he is called, claims that he had never encountered a building too high or too smooth on the outside for him to ascend. He says he has climbed the Woolworth building in New York, where 200,000 spectators watched him for one hour and eight minutes, this time being required to make the climb. On Monday and Tuesday a 1,200 foot film will be shown with the record making feat at the Broadway theater, showing young Polley climbing some of the world's highest buildings. Polley stated last night that he intended staying in Danville for some time, probably two months. He intimated that he was considering a proposition which if he decides to carry out, would afford something new for Danville. However, he did make known what his plans were in connection with the undertaking.

AMUSEMENTS.

Carrillo Scores in "Lombardi Ltd." (Richmond Times-Dispatch, Jan. 27.) Not to have seen Leo Carrillo in "Lombardi, Ltd." is to have missed one of the great character parts in modern legitimate drama. Carrillo has created a role which is great enough to be ranked with the "Auctioneer" and the "Music Master." The play "Lombardi, Ltd." is filling a return engagement at the Academy of Music, having been shown here last October.

Mr. Carrillo, as Tito Lombardi, the Italian dressmaker of fashionable New York society, is a very interesting product of playwright's mind and as depicted on the stage by Mr. Carrillo, he becomes a polished, debonair, suave gentleman, who has great difficulty in making himself understood in his imperfect English, but who succeeds, nevertheless, in making his gentle personality a very vital part of his play. Indeed, so vital is it that the interest centers in Lombardi chiefly in his reaction to various incidents of the action, his loyalty to the mannequins in his employ, his disgust of the financial details of the business, and, finally, in disclosing his high sense of honor. Mr. Carrillo is undoubtedly a great artist.

The action of the play lies in the dressmaking establishment of "Lombardi, Ltd., Limited," where the proprietor is surrounded by an attractive corps of assistants, each of much charm, whose pose in his creations, and upon whom he designs gowns which bring out bursts of admiration and applause from his audience. Dorothy Slayter, Eleanor Williams and Adelle Lory supply all the requisites of the mannequin. Ethel Dwyer, as the assistant; Ruth Rickaby, as Phyllis Manning, the sweetheart of Lombardi, and the victim of Tarrant, man about town, played by Averell Harris; Lida Moore, a show girl, played by Ethel Wilson; Eloise, by Daisy Rudd, the shapely, but gum-chewing model; Mrs. Brown, the voluminous and excitable customer, by Louise Sydney; and Mollie McNeil, the forewoman, played by Miss Barbour, all these roles are capably filled.

END OF ARBUCKLE TRIAL IN SIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28.—The prosecution announced today that the end of the rebuttal testimony was "in sight" in the second trial of a man-slaughter charge against Lester C. Arbuckle. A connection with the death of Miss Virginia Apple, motion picture actress.
